In the Specification:

After the end of page 3, please insert the following:

SUMMARY

A method, and apparatus are described to extract relevant content from web sites based on user preferences. One described method includes monitoring usage during a session, recording information selected during the monitored session, analyzing the recorded information to determine a user interest for the session, and automatically generating a search engine query based on the determined interest. The method may further include transmitting the generated search engine query to a remote web site to query, and receiving query results from the remote web site based on the query.